Olympic legacy boost for tourism

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE borough's world-famous attractions have seen a massive rise in visitor numbers since the Olympics.

Figures for 2013 show record numbers of visitors which help to boost local business and the local economy. Royal Museums Greenwich says visitors to the 17th century Queen's House is up by an astonishing 54 per cent on the year before with an additional 149,000 people.

The National Maritime Museum had 1,437,000 and the Royal Observatory had 798,000, both up by 27 per cent. The Cutty Sark, reopened in 2012 after a multi-million pound restoration, had 321,000 visitors, an increase of 26 per cent. Visitor numbers to the Old Royal Naval College (ORNC) in Greenwich broke through the 1.8million figure for the first time. There were 1,803,500 visitors, which does not include the thousands of people who went along to events in the college's grounds during 2013.

The college is run by the ORNC Foundation charity. Brendan McCarthy, its chief executive, said: "Among the many highlights of the year was the first phase of the conservation of the Painted Hall. Thousands of visitors enjoyed getting close up to the upper hall ceiling and west wall paintings for the first time in a generation during the conservation work through our programme of

We need a memorial to honour Lee Rigby

Star Letter

I HAVE just read in GT No 287 that the council held a minutes' silence in memory of Lee Rigby at a recent meeting. As it is nearing the anniversary of his murder, I would like to see a plaque at the spot in his memory, the same that was done for Stephen Lawrence. Stephen's mum fought for justice and just because Lee's parents haven't requested this, it doesn't mean we shouldn't do it for their son. I wrote to David Cameron after the murder asking him to arrange a memorial plaque for Lee but the reply I got only thanked me for my views. I hope the council will do better, as it happened on our doorstep, and he should be given the respect he deserves.

Mrs J Trott, Kidbrooke

● A council spokesman said: "Thank you for your letter. Since the day of Lee Rigby's tragic death, we have been overwhelmed by interest in a local memorial for him. We appreciate the public feelings about this tragic murder. The council is in on-going talks with the Army about an appropriate way to remember him. The Army has been our link to Lee's family and we would expect the Army to be the first port-of-call for those wishing to propose memorials."

Repaint road marks at hazardous junction

WOULD Greenwich council, or whoever is responsible, please make sure road marks are repainted at the junction of Plumstead High Street and Lakedale Road/White Heart Road? Drivers coming from the south side of Plumstead High Street can't see the markings of the reservation space in the middle of the road, and often nearly cause collisions because of the faded road marks.

Bakare Alade Plumstead

● A council spokesman said:

"Thank you for your letter. Road markings, along with a range of other measures, help contribute to road safety, provide motorists with general guidance as well as describe traffic regulations. The council refreshes all worn out road markings on a rolling regime and many readers will have noticed a number of areas across the borough where this has recently been completed. We are grateful for receiving this report. We can confirm that a highway engineer will attend site to see what needs to be done."

Lion dancing

PETITE PERFORMERS: pupils dance to welcome spring, left, the lion dancers

SENIOR officers from the Chinese embassy were among the audience when pupils welcomed spring with a special assembly.

Youngsters from the Greenwich Chinese Community School presented a programme of entertainment to mark the start of spring - and the 33rd anniversary of their supplementary school.

The school is based in Meridian Primary school in Old Woolwich Road offers classes in Cantonese and Mandarin and runs cultural activities, workshops and homework support. The anniversary celebrations were held on March 9 with over 300 people attending. They included parents and teachers who were joined by Greenwich MP Nick Raynsford, Greenwich Mayor Angela Cornforth and Cllr Janet Gillman.

School chairman Wing Chan gave the opening speech to start an afternoon of presentations by pupils aged four upwards.

It included a Chinese children's dance called the Wahaha to welcome spring as well as songs and poems presented in Cantonese and Mandarin. The Pak Mei lion dance group danced in recognition of the Year of the Horse and a choir of teachers and parents sang together in Mandarin.

"Everybody left smiling," said the school's headteacher Josephine Chan who gave special thanks to the school's 48 volunteer teachers as well as parents and supporters who had made donations for the event, adding: "From the very beginning Greenwich Council has given us their continued support and without their understanding and support the school would not have lasted for 33 years."

UP SHE RISES: The Mayor Angela Cornforth with guests at the Commonwealth Flag raising at Woolwich Town Hall

Flag of friendship

THE Royal Borough of Greenwich joined other local authorities across the county in raising the Commonwealth Flag to mark Commonwealth Day last week (Mon March 10).

The mayor of the royal borough, Cllr Angela Cornforth, led a ceremony attended by veterans, councillors and community reps, and read out a message from Her Majesty The Queen.

The Commonwealth Flag was raised by the mayor and the event was timed to be simultaneous with other ceremonies across the country.

Cllr Cornforth shared the words of Britain's head of state with guests, which expressed good wishes to all taking part.

This year's flag raising was the first of what will now be an annual ceremony across Britain on Commonwealth Day, traditionally held on the second Monday of March.

Cllr Cornforth told GT: "The ceremony was about joining together with members of the Commonwealth community on a national and international level and the flag we raised was a symbol of this friendship and affinity.

"The values of the Commonwealth involve respect and understanding, as well as advancing development, democracy and cooperation.

"I'm proud that the Royal Borough of Greenwich was able to be part of these celebrations which promotes understanding between peoples and nations."

Young adventurers invited to apply for tall ships sponsorship

YOUNG adventurers who want to crew a tall ship are signing up for sponsorship and free sailing sessions.

Applications are coming in from young people who are hoping their voyage in the Falmouth to Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Regatta will be sponsored by the royal borough.

The council is funding 30 places for crew members on the spectacular sailing event taking place this summer.

On August 28, up to 50 majestic tall ships will set sail on a race from Falmouth to Royal Greenwich before the ships are moored along the Greenwich waterfront for a four-day regatta festival.

Shipmates are needed to steer the course while land crew is being recruited to help visitors find their way around the ships during the regatta festival from September 5-9.

The event, organised by the royal borough and Sail Training International, will be the biggest tall ships regatta London has seen for 25 years.

As part of its support, the royal borough is funding 30 places for people aged 16-25 who live or study in Greenwich. Details of the sponsorship offer are being sent to schools, youth clubs, the Charlton Athletic Community Trust and other community organisations.

Applicants are asked to explain why they want to go on a tall ships adventure, what they feel they will get out of it and why they think they should receive funding. Applicants must be supported by a personal reference from someone who knows them well such as a parent, legal guardian, teacher, employer or youth club leader.

Successful candidates will win a place on board an A class tall ship where they can experience the thrill of sailing a tall ship including manoeuvring the sails, steering the ship and keeping watch. It's also a chance to learn new skills while making new friends and participants will gain a Royal Greenwich Sail Training Award.

Other places are open to people of all ages who can take part if they can find their own sponsors or fund the voyage themselves. Depending on the size of the ship, the voyage will cost around £90 a day including all training and safety equipment, wet weather gear, food, drink and a berth.

Residents who have already signed up for the sea adventure include Ethan O'Neill, who turns 16 in June, who said: 'It's something that you would remember when you are a pensioner and you could tell your grandchildren about it. Making new friends and learning new skills would be a great benefit to me especially as I close the door on my secondary school and move on with my future.'

In the meantime, young people are invited to join free sailing taster sessions at Deptford's Ahoy sailing centre over Easter. Open to 15-24-year-olds, they have been organised to inspire young sailors in the run up to the tall ships regatta and will be of particular interest to those thinking of signing up as tall ships crew.

Cllr Peter Kotz, the royal borough's cabinet member for culture and creative industries said: "These events are offering brilliant opportunities for young people, and indeed people of any age, to gain some valuable skills and qualifications and to work in a team on an exciting adventure of a lifetime."

Pupils inspired to be the best

CHILDREN at Morden Mount had a "knockout" morning, meeting Great Britain champion boxer Hannah Beharry.

Hannah was invited to help motivate and inspire the children to achieve their dreams.

Hannah visited Morden Mount as part of the Olympic Legacy project Be the Best you can Be! It was initiated by Olympic 400m hurdles gold medallist from 1968, David Hemery CBE, through 21st Century Legacy, of which he is a director.

She met all the children and led an inspirational assembly on setting the highest personal targets and making your dreams a reality through resilience, perseverance and hard work.

The children are working through the challenging Be the Best you can Be! programme with their teachers and are excited about this highly motivating approach to learning.

School councillor, Diana, aged 10, said: "I felt excited to meet a champion boxer."

"Hannah really believed in herself and inspired me to always follow my dreams."

"I'm committed to becoming a competitor in the Olympics one day."

Another pupil, Ricky, aged 10, said: "Hannah really inspired me. She made me feel more confident and determined to never give up on my hopes and dreams."

Hannah's life was turned around through boxing. She turned away from a life of crime aged 17 and took up boxing and is now, at 23, a member of the Haringey Police Boxing Club and acts as a strong model for communities.

Twice a European Union bronze medallist, she missed out on the 2012 Olympics through injury.

Briony Brammer, executive headteacher of the improving Morden Mount Primary and the outstanding Hawksmoor Primary, said: "We all had a fantastic time with Hannah. She inspired our children, and all the adults too, with her incredible determination and will to succeed."

"I was personally impressed by how Hannah bravely challenged the stereotypes preventing female boxing and I could see the girls especially being inspired by Hannah's achievements."

Big leap in visitors

Tourist attractions feel boost after Olympics scaffolding tours and special events." The college is also a popular movie location, with blockbusters such as Pirates of The Caribbean 4: On Stranger Tides, Skyfall, Les Misérables and The King's Speech filmed there.

The soaring number of visitors endorses the success of 'Discover More', a council-led campaign designed to promote Royal Greenwich as a visitor destination. Launched after the 2012 Games, the campaign urged visitors on day trips to stay longer and experience the full variety of attractions on offer.

As well as the Maritime Greenwich World Heritage Site, the campaign promoted other borough locations as 'must-see' destinations. They included the remarkable architecture of the Royal Arsenal in Woolwich, the magnificence of Eltham Palace, and the Greenwich Peninsula - home to the world's most successful entertainment venue, The O2 arena.

The council also set up the Destination Management Company last year to promote all that Greenwich has to offer.

As part of the drive to encourage people to say overnight, there are plans to increase the number of hotel rooms to more than 2500 over the next few years.

The aim is to give a powerful boost to the local economy and help create new jobs.

Royal Greenwich currently attracts around 18 million visitors a year generating £774 million for the local economy. It also supports around 12,000 local jobs. The tourism sector has seen rapid growth since the Olympics and Paralympics, in line with the council's ambitious regeneration programme.

Cllr Peter Kotz, the royal borough's cabinet member for cultural and creative industries, said: "The Olympics and Paralympics in 2012 were a watershed in the history of our borough. They helped confirm our status as a world-class visitor destination. The rapidly-growing popularity of our visitor attractions, and the many other cultural and economic spin-offs since, have had an impact that no-one could have predicted.

Our Discover More campaign is all about opening people's eyes further to the many other areas with historical, architectural and cultural right across the borough."

Can you trunk leisure centre boss?

WATERFRONT Leisure Centre manager Sam Wright has promised to do a charity swimathon in a gold thong if sponsorship from staff reaches £300.

Swimmers will take the plunge for Sainsbury's Sport Relief Swimathon at the Woolwich sports centre, run by the council's leisure services partner Greenwich Leisure Limited, from Friday to Sunday (March 21-23).

It is one of 600 venues putting on swimathons across the country. There is a choice of distances - 1.5km, 2.5km or 5km for individuals and 1.5km and 5km for relay teams.

Sam, who started his working life as a Waterfront lifeguard 25 years ago, said: "I have a target to reach for sponsors. If that target is reached I will be taking part in a gold thong."

The Waterfront is also hosting a 'big mash up' on Friday, from 6.30-8pm, in the sports hall. It is free, subject to a donation to Sport Relief.

The event will consist of a circuit-training style set of activities, starting with a group aerobic warm-up and people put in teams of 10 moving round stations including body conditioning, boxing, core work and dance.

B16 bus route changes

TRANSPORT for London is holding a public consultation on proposed changes to the B16 bus route.

Residents can learn more and give their views at a drop in session from 4-8pm on March 26 at Kidbrooke Village Information Centre, 2 Elford Close, off Tudway Road, London, SE3 9FA.

The prospective changes would make accessing the bus network easier for local residents by returning services to the Tudway Road area of Kidbrooke. The B16 bus had previously been withdrawn from this area due to closure of roads as part of the development of Kidbrooke Village.

TfL would like to know the views of bus users, local residents and anyone else with an interest.

● You can also respond to the consultation online at: consultations.tfl.gov.uk/buses/route-b16 or by email at consultations@tfl.gov.uk

Mind your own business

SMALL business-owners are urged to put emergency plans in place for unexpected events.

A power cut or a burst water main can cause havoc for businesses, and can put them out of action for hours or even days say royal borough emergency advisers.

But while most larger firms have plans in place to deal with emergencies, smaller businesses may not have thought too much about it – and could be badly caught out they say.

This week is International Business Continuity Management Week, when firms of all types and sizes are being encouraged to put together a plan to cope with any emergency that could bring their operation to a standstill.

plan for use in an emergency.

Council officers also give talks on business continuity to local organisations. A recent one was to the Independents Breakfast Club, which meets every Tuesday morning at the Clarendon Hotel in Blackheath.

Club member Rupert Chichester, a partner with Grant Saw solicitors in Norman Road, Greenwich, said: "I found the talk very interesting. We went through the business continuity process several years ago, and it was good to hear some updated information. The information on the council's website is very useful. I think it is essential for all businesses to put their own plans in place."

Housing estate plans turned down - again

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE planning inspector has backed a royal borough decision to turn down plans for 131-home estate in Blackheath.

The developer Derreb Ltd had appealed after its scheme to build on the site of the former Huntsman Sports Club in Manor Way was rejected.

But a government planning inspector agreed with the council, the Blackheath Cator Estate Residents group, the Blackheath Society, and individual residents, and refused planning permission.

A major concern was the developer's plans to put a vehicle entrance at the western corner of the site, which would lead to roads on the Cator Estate.

Paul Dobsen, the inspector, agreed the entrance would create an increase in traffic and said: "Owing to the position of the principal access in the west, the proposed development would fail to be properly integrated. It would also tend to harm the character of the nearby parts of the adjacent Blackheath Park. I also have serious concerns about the western access in terms of highways and pedestrian safety."

He added: "I conclude that the appeal scheme has significant defects which on balance make it unacceptable."

The decision was welcomed by John Bartram, director of Blackheath Cator Estate Residents Ltd, which owns and manages the major roads on the estate.

He said: "Everyone who objected is extremely pleased the appeal was dismissed and the request for vehicle access on to the site was refused."

Hospice van stolen

A VAN belonging to Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice has been stolen.

The vehicle was stolen from the hospice's retail distribution centre at 12-15 Bellegrove Parade in Welling on Saturday March 1. The white Ford Transit Luton boxed van, registration number VN61 ZPR, was last seen by hospice staff at 5.30pm and later seen being driven down Wickham Lane in Welling after 9pm. Police are checking CCTV footage in the area.

The van has the Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice printed across the side and the front. It was used daily by hospice's retail department to move donated stock between its 17 shops and to collect and deliver furniture to customers across the boroughs of Greenwich and Bexley. It was a vital resource and the theft could set the charity back £25,000.

The funds it helped raise were used to support the hospice's patients with life threatening illnesses, their families and carers.

● If you have any information about the theft please contact police on 101 or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

ECONOMIC PROSPERITY: Second Floor Studio and Arts pick up their prize

A YOUNG man who turned his life around after becoming involved in gangs was among royal borough residents honoured in the Civic Awards last Friday.

Nkemjika Eka, from Abbey Wood, won the young achiever award for his work with Charlton Athletic Community Trust, earning coaching badges and volunteering to coach others.

The 18-year-old spent a couple of seasons playing in the Championship club's academy before a back injury ended his playing days at 15. The disappointment proved destructive and Nkemjika fell into a world of crime and gangs.

Through the trust's crime reduction programme, he has turned his life around, carrying out a 12-week period as a volunteer and taking Level one and two coaching qualifications. Now he is a volunteer on his gap year ahead of going to Kent Medway in September to study sports and exercise management.

Nkemjika said: "When I got my injury, my dream of playing professional football collapsed. Because I felt that dream was gone, I started going the wrong way. "I basically lashed out because I was angry at the world, but it wasn't the world that got me injured."

Nkemjika still suffers with a lower back injury medics cannot seem to solve yet still harbours hopes of playing if he can ever get to the bottom of it. But over the past year he has shown dedication in working and helping vulnerable young people in the community, coaching youngsters and talking to them about his experiences.

"I'm teaching basic skills to people aged 12-18 - some of them are even older than me," he said. "I've made one or two speeches to young people about football and the other side of life that they shouldn't get involved in."

There were five winners of the contribution to the community award. One was the Greenwich Foodbank and another being John Killick, who set up the Community Association of New Eltham (CANE) 18 years ago, starting with two empty rooms. It is now a thriving centre for many people to use.

Joan Sowamber received the award for working tirelessly to promote good relations and community cohesion in Woolwich. She chairs the Walpole Estate Management Board and works closely with the Woolwich Common Safer Neighbourhood Team.

The fourth winner was the AHOY Centre, a watersports-based charity offering opportunities and building life-skills through sailing and rowing. Peter Durant was also honoured. He has chaired the borough-wide Community Engagement

There were two winners of the business and innovation award: amBX UK Ltd, which owns, develops and delivers the unique amBX intelligent lighting control technology to partner and clients worldwide; Crowd Vision, a small, highly Among three lifetime achievement winners was Marjorie Hawkins, who has taught Irish dancing in the royal borough for 50 years, including raising money for many charities locally and nationally. Her group performed at the awards ceremony.

Another winner was Chris Lloyd, whose four decades involved with music in the borough began as a lead member of the Royal Artillery Band. He has since set up the Greenwich Academy of Music and Drama and with the Greenwich Youth Band and Greenwich Concert Band. The third winner was Dr Tariq Abbasi, MBE, who is director of Greenwich Islamic Centre and who has served the Muslim community for 26 years.

The awards for contribution to economic prosperity was awarded to Second Floor Studios & Arts, which is working in partnership with Emafyl Properties on an initiative to develop over 100,000 sq ft of vacant industrial space on the Mellish Industrial Estate. French caterer Didier's Patisserie, this year awarded a Royal Warrant, was commended.

The contribution to public service award went to Mandy Wong, who works in the Gastric Department of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. Two commendations went to Bob Love, who has been a school governor for 30 years, and Robert Young, who has been one for 20 years.

Artistic director's accolade

GREENWICH & Lewisham Young People's Theatre (GLYPT) has been creating high-quality theatre for, and with, young people for more than 40 years.

The Civic Awards recognised the contribution of Jeremy James, who has been its artistic director since 2003, in the Contribution to Culture, Sports and the Arts category.

His citation said: "Jeremy has led GLYPT to being one of most respected young people's artistic projects in London. He has steadily built up a programme of events and activities to draw young people from all across Royal Greenwich & Lewisham and to support them in developing a range of skills to complement their studies, build confidence and help ready them for adult life."

Jeremy told GT: "It was very nice for me to receive this award, and while it was given to me it was also for our organisation. We are a relatively small team of people who work pretty hard and engage with lots of young people.

"We have 200 at the Tramshed each week for different weekly theatre and dance groups. They are people of all ages, a huge variety who include some with learning difficulties or mental health challenges.

"You work very hard, and you sometimes wonder if anyone notices you. So that's what so lovely about getting an award, and it's good news for the Tramshed as well."

The second winner of the category was Aperture Woolwich Photographic Society, based at Shrewsbury House Community Centre. It is one of the oldest camera clubs in the country.

VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR: Scout and Guide leader Bee Twidale was a joint winner of her category, with County Commissioner for London Sue Arkwright (below). Edith Ray (bottom) was commended in the lifetime achievement

Three rewarded for Bee-ing great Scout & Guide leaders

A trio of Scout and Guide volunteers were honoured at the Civic Awards.

One was Bee Twidale, a joint winner of volunteer of the year.

Bee has volunteered in Girl Guiding for 50 years and Scouting for four decades, at present helping the First Royal Eltham West Rainbows and the 40th Greenwich Scouts.

"I was a Guide myself and was hooked on, and had a really good Guide leader," she said. Aged 14, she began Sunday school teaching - which led to a teaching career at Wood Hill and Alderwood - from which she insisted Scouting, which sounds similar, is far removed.

"It's a great privilege to be part of these young people's lives," she said. "You are not their parent or their teacher, it's completely different."

Once a year, Bee combines the two main pleasures for which she was nominated - the other being wildlife.

Each autumn she takes Rainbows to Avery Hill Park with bat detectors to listen to the creatures in the dark.

That is because Bee is also a wildlife enthusiast and an important member of many groups, including the Friends of Avery Hill Park, Greenwich Park Forum and the Greenwich Wildlife Advisory Group.

Another winner of the same category was Julie Arkwright, for her heavy involvement in Scouting, including being selected as County Commissioner for London and the South East Region, a very high honour in Girl Guiding.

Scouting also featured in the lifetime achievement section, where a commendation was awarded to Edith Ray, a Scout leader for nearly 40 years in Abbey Wood.

The other volunteer of the year was Resham Aryal, who has been volunteering since 1993, in particular for the Nepalese Community.

He founded the Charlton Nepali Samaj and volunteers weekly to teach children about their heritage.

A commendation in the category was awarded to Myles Dove, 86, who leads a team seeking out and removing graffiti in the Westcombe Park area. Myles has encouraged other people to join in. For over 20 years, Myles has been the distribution manager for the community newspaper, Westcombe News and served on the Westcombe Society's Environment Committee, helping to protect and enhance conservation areas.

ROYAL BOROUGH OF

SCENE

SNIFFING OUT SHAKESPEARE: actor Jimmy Whitaker in 'Caliban'

Contemporary takes on Shakespeare

YOUNG performers are hosting two special productions by Shakespeare for their contemporaries as part of a national celebration of the Bard.

Greenwich & Lewisham Young People's Theatre is hosting two Shakespeare-themed shows this month, for local school children to celebrate the first National Shakespeare Week - and Shakespeare's 450th birthday.

The week from March 17-21, is being celebrated up and down the country, with schools and arts organisations - including the Tramshed-based youth theatre group - involved. The event is designed to get children inspired by Shakespeare and his vast influence on literature, drama and culture.

Produced by Company of Angels and Bristol Old Vic, the productions - 'I, Peaseblossom' and 'I, Caliban' - are explorations of Shakespeare's classic plays, A Midsummer Night's Dream and The Tempest but told from a new perspective. Writer Tim Crouch, and performer Jimmy Whitaker re-tell these famous stories from the fresh perspectives of characters usually consigned to the side-lines.

Their unique interpretations of Shakespeare's work fuse contemporary language with the original text, making it accessible to children from as young as eight, and hopefully instilling a passion for Shakespeare's work in young people.

The Tramshed's Zoe Bateman said: "These productions make Shakespeare accessible and exciting. The days when young audiences associate Shakespeare only with confusion and convoluted long gone."

Schools performances run until Friday 21st March 21 - I, Peaseblossom is for ages 7-9 and I, Caliban for 9s-11s.

Schools can book places on 020 8854 1316. Tickets are £5 per pupil (teachers for free). Visit www.glypt.co.uk

AFTER being told her casting type was 'mother in washing powder commercial,' actress Natalie Penn created a play for herself and her own production company so she could play all the roles she fancied.

The result is the Front Room Theatre Company, a successful touring company which makes a return visit to the borough with its latest production this week.

Last year Natalie starred in a one-woman show - Lie Back and Think of America - at Shrewsbury House near her Shooters Hill home. This time she's teamed up with American-born singer Maya Levy for a cabaret-style showcase of their favourite songs.

Maya and Natalie's Marvellous Mishmash of Musicals features songs, dance and dramatisations from well-known and lesser known musicals. Each 'mishmash' reveals insights into their lives as the girls explain why they love their chosen numbers so much.

Maya's singing an Alice in Wonderland medley she sang as a child while Natalie plays Oliver and tap dances to a Fred Astaire number.

While she agrees it's all a little indulgent Natalie insists there'll be something for all ages in the hour-long show which will involve some audience participation.

"We have focussed on doing stuff that we think people will really like to hear as much as we like to sing them. There'll be dancing and movement plus costume and acting but it's more of a concert than a play. We'll be teaching the audience a couple of songs and there'll be a few surprises - I've been learning the ukelele and I'll be making my ukelele debut," Natalie enthused.

The pair will be backed by pianist and musical director Joseph Finlay and trio have been rehearsing at the West London Synagogue where Maya, a music teacher, leads a choir.

The venture is a chance for both performers to branch out of their performance pigeon holes.

"We both have parts we want to play but realise we will never get to play them

Musical mishmash

HILARY BRYAN talks to writer-actress Natalie Penn as she brings her second production to Greenwich unless we put on a show ourselves," Natalie explained.

Last year's play about a family living through World War II featured readings from letters written by local evacuees in a pre-performance competition. "We had some really good feedback and I met loads of evacuees from the area," said Natalie.

Involving her local community is something the actress strives for and she's brought both productions to Shrewsbury House. "I wanted to perform in Greenwich and particularly within my local community as there isn't much nearby - the nearest cinema is 40 minutes away. I like the idea of bringing the theatre to the community so people can get to a performance near to them."

Maya and Natalie's Marvellous Musical Mishmash is on at Shrewsbury House, Bushmoor Crescent, on Thursday and Friday March 20 and 21, 8-9pm. Tickets:

*£8, and £6.50 concessions

THE making of the 2012 Paralympics opening ceremony and its legacy will be discussed in the latest Big Picture seminar at the University of Greenwich Business School. Bradley Hemmings presents Behind the Scenes at the 2012 Paralympic Opening Ceremony on Wednesday March 19, 5-7pm at the Greenwich Campus. He was co-artistic director of the 2012 event, which grew out of his longstanding work with disabled artists and his active role in outdoor theatre.

Bradley is also the founder and artistic director of Greenwich+Docklands International Festival, which has grown into one of the UK's leading outdoor arts festivals, attracting audiences of more than 100,000 each year. Women inspired to change

GUEST speakers from the world of business, education, media and charity gathered at Greenwich Community College to talk about their experiences as part of an International Women's Day event across the borough.

International Women's Day, on March 8, has been observed since the early 1900s and is celebrated across the world. This year's message is 'Inspiring Change' and was the theme of the event organised by the college's Student Council at its Plumstead Centre.

Speakers included; Harri Douglas from Amnesty International, BBC producer Terry Tyldesley, Cassie Taylor and Faye Garwood from local women's support group FACE and restaurant owner Mary Otuleye from Plumstead.

Ms Otuleye gave students this advice to succeed in business: "Use your strengths, work on your weaknesses and grasp your opportunities."

Health and social care student, Deborah Deny, 19, said: "The event was very encouraging and informative. It has inspired me to follow my dreams."

Community College vice-principal for curriculum, Bernadette McAnespie, said: "We are proud of and celebrate the diversity of our student community. I was delighted to see so many students support and be inspired by the event."

Girls at Eltham Hill School marked the day by recognising women of all cultures and backgrounds for their achievements.

This included performing a dance and music performance with the Bollywood Brass Band, and a talk by Mollie Hughes the youngest woman to have climbed Mount Everest.

Year 10 compiled a book about successful women internationally, and year 11 spoke to a panel of women in business to learn what they had achieved.

At another event at Charlton house last

STAR ACT: Libyan born Nadia Al Faghil gets the young crowd moving with her drumming praised both organisations. The Her Project's Ukulele Band and Chinese Dancers set the audience in high spirits for the great evening ahead and DJ Debbie kept everyone entertained as the huge crowd tucked into a tasty vegetable curry.

There was high energy dance from the teenagers of Malaika Dance Unique followed by sixteen year old singer/songwriter Zarina sharing some of her original songs.

Ugandan Milly Namukasa had everyone dancing and Kenyan songbird Apelles Ogaga's dynamic voice raised the roof.

Among the other entertainment, poet and musician Louisa Le Marchand with her harmonica sang the song she had written especially for IWD 'It's the Role of a Woman to be Strong.'

Friday 160 people from several London boroughs got together for a women's day celebration on Friday March 7, organised by Global Fusion Music & Arts and the Her Centre. Borough mayor Cllr Angela Cornforth

IMPORTANT NOTICE FOR ROYAL BOROUGH TENANTS WHO ARE MOVING

DON'T GET A BILL AFTER YOU LEAVE

Under the conditions of your tenancy agreement, you have a responsibility to leave your property in an acceptable state of repair. We may visit you to check this. If we consider your property is in an unacceptable condition, you may be prevented from moving or be recharged for work.

To avoid getting an unwelcome bill, follow these rules:

- Repair any damage caused to the property by you, your family or visitors to your home.
- Make good any changes you have made to your property e.g. put back any doors that you have removed.
- Make sure your garden is not overgrown and you have cleared all garden waste.
- Clear all your items from the inside and the outside of the property. This includes any loft space, external cupboards or sheds.
- Return all the keys to the Royal Borough's offices no later than midday on Monday (or Tuesday if it is a Bank Holiday). You will be charged a further week's rent if you do not return your keys on time.

If you leave repairs that are your responsibility, or items that require disposal you will be charged the cost of this work.

Special Collection Service

The Royal Borough offers a Special Collection Service for tenants who are moving and want to dispose of something big and bulky, like a sofa or a fridge, and even unwanted clothes and other textiles.

Simply contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661 and tell them where you live and what you would like taken away.

Items we will collect include:

Fridges, freezers, washing machines, beds, sofas, clothes and carpets (carpets must be cut up and tied into manageable bundles that one person can carry).

Items we DO NOT collect include:

Fitted kitchens, bathroom suites, boilers, sheds, fences and rubble.

For further information, please contact Waste Services on 020 8921 4661.

Please leave your home in a good condition!

HORNFAIR Park will host the opening race of the London summer series of BMX riding on Sunday.

The aim of the series is to attract new riders to the sport.

The Charlton track was opened in September 2011 as part of the royal borough's playground to podium programme, designed to provide a legacy for all Olympic sports after London held the Games in 2012.

Greenwich BMX Club chairman Saharan Duhig said: "There are a number of new Olympic legacy tracks around London and with the success of the winter series we are holding a summer series this year for the first time.

"We have been very fortunate to have been chosen to host the opening race.

"We will get experienced riders coming but the aim of the series is to attract new riders and give them the opportunity to participate at a beginners level and gain valuable experience and a taste of the excitement of bmx racing."

The event is being supported by Access Sport and there will be five races in the series. Entry to the event is on the day and is £5 for novices and £10 for experts. Registration and practice is from 9.30-11am and racing at noon.

Other events in the series will be held at Hawks, Merton and Peckham between now and September.

Club members train on Saturdays at the track with experienced riders at 9.30am and beginners at 11am.

funded by Motivate East, which encourages sports activity programmes in the boroughs which hosted the Olympics.

"Crown Woods have an inclusive policy and quite a few wheelchair users already."

Sharon reported a "fantastic" atmosphere at the first of eight sessions, held after school on Wednesdays, that have been funded this term. "There was a lovely mix of inclusive kids," she said.

Twins Charlie and Archie Collins were particularly eye-catching under the guidance of instructor John Hoskins, with Sharon predicting the boys could be stars of the future. At present, sessions are just available to Crown Woods pupils, while SLSL runs non-wheelchair tennis sessions for people with disabilities at the Waterfront of Fridays.

● For more details of sessions offered by South London Special League for people with disabilities, contact Sharon Brockshire at specialleague@aol.com or visit www.sl-sl.co.uk

Among other activities, the charity will celebrate its 10th anniversary with a World Cup event in May.

New inclusive wheelchair tennis sessions are big hit

by Ian Lamont

PUPILS at Crown Woods showed great skills and enthusiasm when the South London Special League (SLSL) began their wheelchair tennis sessions at the school recently.

About 15 youngsters took turns in the 10 sports wheelchairs which are stored at the school, which was set up with Building Schools for the Future funding.

The school received added funding from the royal borough as part of its commitment to providing a sporting legacy after the London 2012 Olympics.

Now, it has become the venue for the latest SLSL project, with non-wheelchair and youngsters without a disability joining wheelchair users for the activity.

Sharon Brockenshire, of the SLSL, said: "When we held a festival last September, one of the things people wanted to do was tennis."

SLSL applied to Sportivate - funded by Sport England to get people into sport - for funding and then approached Crown Woods, who had some generic sports wheelchairs
